

ZELOGENESIA

<http://www.jealousieonline.com>

Nowadays, the methods to certify a paternity are refined. The exam of DNA to know the father or the mother is used thoroughly when doubts exist. To know that is the father, usually plenty seedling the way of the individual when working with the child. In general, the negligence observed before knowing that he/she is the child's progenitor is substituted by attention, affection and special cares seeking to the warranty of the son's survival, so soon the exam of DNA confirms the paternity. In modern times the need to have the certainty of the paternity continues in discharge as in remote times and, thanks to the available technology, nowadays, it is enough to examine a hair thread to know the father or the mother. But not always it was that easy. Our ancestral ones didn't have such trustworthy and so "simple" instruments, though, to have the certainty of the paternity was a need that you/they felt in an unconscious way, exactly as in our days. To admit the strangers' children's procreation, it could change the directions of his/her social group completely, carting even the risk of annihilation of whole the group due to genetic anomalies or inaptness to the natural selection.

The woman's pregnancy is of the type hides, because the ovum is fecundated in closed atmosphere, not allowing the selection and the verification or control of the access of the spermatozoids. Our ancestors knew instinctively that if a female copulated with more than a male in short space of time there would not be as having certainty of the paternity. In that way, the control on which spermatozoids should fecundate the human female, would have to be made before the sexual relationship. The humans' behavior was adapted, in other words, it developed for the care or devotion that we noticed in the individuals in the sense of trying to avoid the possibility of extramarital relationships of their partners. That began when there were not exams of DNA and when the only effective way was the surveillance in advance, that carts tension and stress. We are speaking about zelogenesis or sexual jealousy.

The site <http://www.jealousieonline.com> was produced by the Brazilian Psychologist Jorge Nogueira starting from studies in more than 1000 (thousand) cases involving the jealousy. Those cases are filed and they were sent by visitors through e-mails, allowing analyses, elaboration of hypotheses, theories and aconselhamentos.

The studies based on the Psicologia Evolucionista, Behavioral Cognitive Psychology, Psychology of the Development, Biology, Anthropology, Law of the Evolution of the Species and Natural Selection of Darwin, besides other segments of the science. Those studies found the elaboration of 2 books written by the author: JEALOUSY - A new conception and ZELOGENESIA: It deciphers me or I will devour you!

Here, you just have a small sample of the concepts and goods described in the site www.ciumeonline.com.br, originally in the Portuguese language.

We invited you to visit her/it that excellent and modern source of information on jealousy.

Visit www.ciumeonline.com.br

Dr. Jorge Antonio Nogueira Psychologist and Administrator of jealousieonline.com